Advent is the season of joyful waiting in hope ... and a call for action.

We have heard the numbers – “More than 41 million Americans face hunger; nearly 41 million live below the poverty line. And people of color are more likely to be in that number.”

But what are the solutions? What does our faith call us to do? And what if common assumptions are wrong?

Come and join an interactive, hands-on activity that will illuminate reasons for poverty, and help us understand the consequences of various decisions and policies in our country’s past.

When & Where:

Sunday, December 5th

Notes from Fr. Nick

Thanksgiving

Many years ago, a fellow priest gave me a collection of short stories by a South African author, Nadine Gordimer. All of them were written during the apartheid era in that country. As a white woman, she had a unique perspective on the dynamics of those times.

Gordimer wrote about the exclusion of Blacks and people of color from everyday rights and privileges that we might take for granted. Her stories also made it clear that this legalized repression of most of the country's population dragged down the ruling class as well: talents and skills that could have benefited the country as a whole went wasted. Blacks, Coloreds, and Whites had to jump through arbitrary and unnecessary hoops in order to associate with each other. Pervading this unreal atmosphere was the unnerving sense that everyone was being watched.

America is certainly not perfect — we have our own sad history of segregation, and many of us may readily identify with the plight of South Africans during apartheid. While these rights have recently been under attack, at the very least, our legal system is designed to protect our civil liberties.

Our civil liberties are cause for thanksgiving. We can have a lively debate about the way our city, state, and country are run. We can vote or protest or work for change within or outside our government, mostly without fear of retaliation. We can associate with anybody we wish. We often take these and many other rights for granted—and for the most part, they should be. If we had to stop and consider the consequences every time we exercised our basic rights, the free exchange of ideas — which produces so much of our greatness — would be in jeopardy. Gordimer's stories illustrate how the civil restrictions in South Africa came close to destroying their entire society.

As we give thanks this Thursday, let's be thankful for part of the basic fabric of our culture, civil liberties, which allow us to live and flourish.

A PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING

Lord God, on this day of Thanksgiving, we ask your blessings on our family, our friends, our home, our health—and on the food we are about to eat.

We thank you for this time together and the many gifts that you have given us.

Help us to remember in this time of bounty those less fortunate. And may your love consume us all that we might share in your glory.

Amen.
