Parish Music Director Andy Canepa created a beautiful Centennial Mass animated by twenty musicians and chorists, including five members of the Rivera family from our sister parish in Mexicali (Baja California), Santa María de Guadalupe. The Mass featured a new hymn, "O Magdalen, O Mary," composed by two members of St. Mary Magdalen Parish: J.A. Gray (lyrics) and Paul Sporer (music).

Notes from Fr. Nick

Parish Centennial Cruise

The Canterbury Tales is one of the most important works of English literature. Across 20 tales, Geoffrey Chaucer sketched the personalities of pilgrims thrown together on a pilgrimage to Canterbury Cathedral in the late 14th century. Chaucer used the literary device of a story-telling contest among the group as a means of exposing the character of each participant. What might be overlooked is the liminal state these travelers were in, which opened them up to expressing themselves more openly than if they had been in familiar surroundings.

I hope this same dynamic will accompany our parish cruise to Alaska next week. Getting away from familiar surroundings and visiting new places is a wonderful experience, but for me the highlight of the trip is the people I travel with and the new ones I meet. I've been to Alaska more times than I can count, but I'm ready to do it again, because I love the company of my fellow travelers and the new friendships I make.

Along with seeing glaciers, mountains, flora and fauna, I'm looking forward to the stories I will hear and the new ones we'll bring back. I may have known many of you over the past six years, but I'm sure we'll discover new things about each other when we're away from home together.

While we will not be on a religious pilgrimage, I believe the zeitgeist of the sojourners in the Canterbury Tales will be present among us. I look forward to that chemistry.

I believe there are still some last-minute deals available if you'd like to join us on the cruise. Otherwise, we'll see you when we return with some good stories to tell.

It's not too late to sign up for our parish Centennial Cruise to Alaska!
