Larry Itliong

(1913 - 1977)

Modesto "Larry" Dulay Itliong was a pioneering organizer of the migrant farm workers labor movement. Itliong was born on October 25, 1913, in San Nicolas, Pangasinan, Philippines, and immigrated to the U.S. along with a mass of other young Filipino men in the 1920s and 30s, lured by the promises of the American Dream. Despite having had no formal education beyond the 6th grade, he became a relentless and skillful union organizer for cannery and field workers everywhere he worked. He lost three fingers in an accident in an Alaskan cannery, which earned him the nickname, "Seven Fingers."

During WWII, Itliong served in the U.S. Army as a messman on a transport ship. After the war, he settled in Stockton, where he became active with other field workers in the 1948 asparagus strike. In the 1950s, he founded the Filipino Farm Labor Union; by 1957 he was elected its president. Itliong was the leading AFL-CIO union organizer whose committee (made up mostly of Filipinos of his generation) voted on May 3, 1965, to strike against Coachella Valley grape growers. Although the strikers were unable to negotiate a contract with the growers, they did win higher wages.

On September 8, 1965, Itliong's committee started what became a five-year-long strike against Delano grape growers. For the first time, under the guidance of Cesar Chavez, Mexican workers did not break the Filipino strike, and Chavez's union soon supported Itliong's on the picket lines. Together they formed the United Farm Workers. By 1966, the California Rural Legal Assistance was founded as part of Pres. Lyndon Johnson's "War on Poverty," with Cesar Chavez, Dolores Huerta and Itliong sitting on the founding board.

"The Constitution said that everybody has equal rights and justice. You have to make that come about. They are not going to give it to you."

Diosdado ("Dado") Banatao

(1946 - present)

Diosdado ("Dado") Banatao is a Filipino American entrepreneur and engineer working in the high-tech industry, credited with having developed a number of "firsts" in the design of personal computer chips.

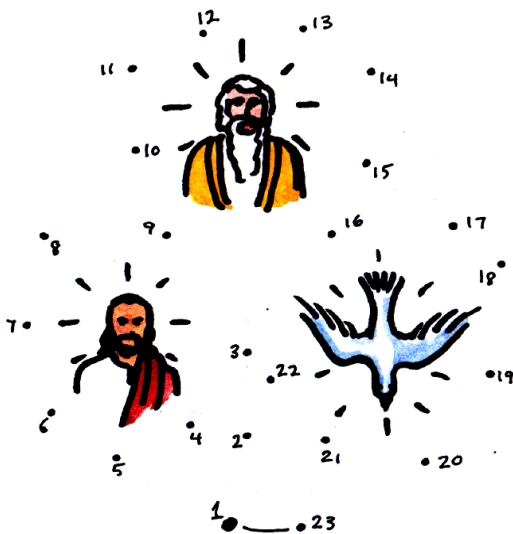

Banatao was born on May 23, 1946, into a poor family in Iguig, Cagayan. His father was a farmer and his mother a housekeeper. He earned a B.S. in electrical engineering from the Mapua Institute of Technology but, unable to find an interesting engineering job, he decided to become an airline pilot. Partway through that training, Boeing USA invited him to come to Seattle as an engineer for the 747 program. He did so, also studying at the University of Washington, and eventually transferring to Stanford to complete his Ph.D.

Banatao became a leading innovator in Silicon Valley microprocessor design, creating the first 10-Mbit Ethernet CMOS, the first system logic chipset for IBM's PC-XT, and the first Windows Graphics accelerator chip. He then became a venture capitalist; his firm, Tallwood, invests in companies with unique technologies.

While Banatao has come to be known for his vision and achievement in technology and entrepreneurship, he and his wife, Maria, are active civic leaders as well: in 2002, they established the Banatao Family Filipino American Education Fund to help California high school students of Filipino heritage pursue careers in science and engineering — fields in which they have historically been underrepresented. Since 2005, the Dado and Maria Banatao GLOBE Center for Global Learning and Outreach from Berkeley Engineering has worked to expand UC Berkeley Engineering's impact through international, executive, and professional programs.

"I can not forget that I came from very humble beginnings. The legacy I want to leave is to be remembered as a good person first, an engineer second. I firmly believe that true fortune resides in fortitude, family, and faith."

The Kids' Bulletin

There are three Persons in God:
The Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.
But there is still only one God!
Saint Patrick taught the Irish people about the BLESSED TRINITY by showing the people something else that is three-in-one. What is it? Connect the dots to find out!

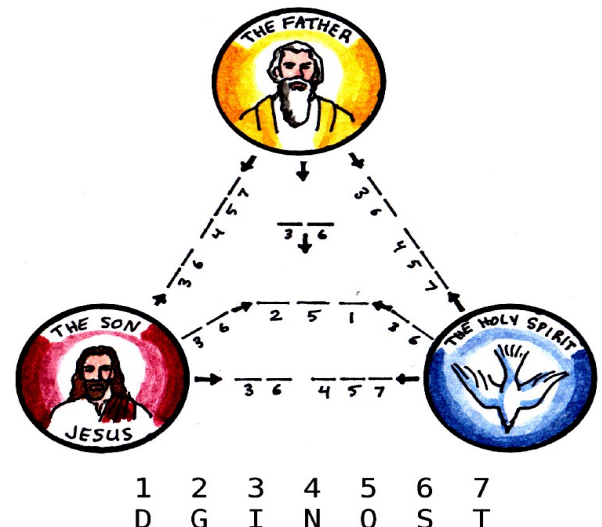

What is the Blessed Trinity?

The Blessed Trinity is God! There are three Persons in God, but there is only one God. "Trinity" comes from the Latin word for three.

Only God the Son, Who is Jesus, has a body. But we show God the Father as an old man, and the Holy Spirit as a dove.

Here is a puzzle that might help you understand the Holy Trinity a little better. Use the letter code at the bottom to fill in the blanks.

Trinity Sunday

A few years ago, I went to see the Cohen Brothers' film Hail Caesar, which satirizes the politics of movie studios in the early 1950s. It centers on a studio that is producing an epic film about the life of Christ. One scene had me laughing out loud while the rest of the theatre sat silent. In it, an executive called in a minister, a rabbi, an Orthodox and a Catholic priest to review the script. Immediately, the clergy got into an argument over the nature of the Trinity. The humor was that a learned discussion about the nature of God was taking place in such a trivial context. Yet in a matter of seconds, the dialogue got to the heart of our understanding of God.

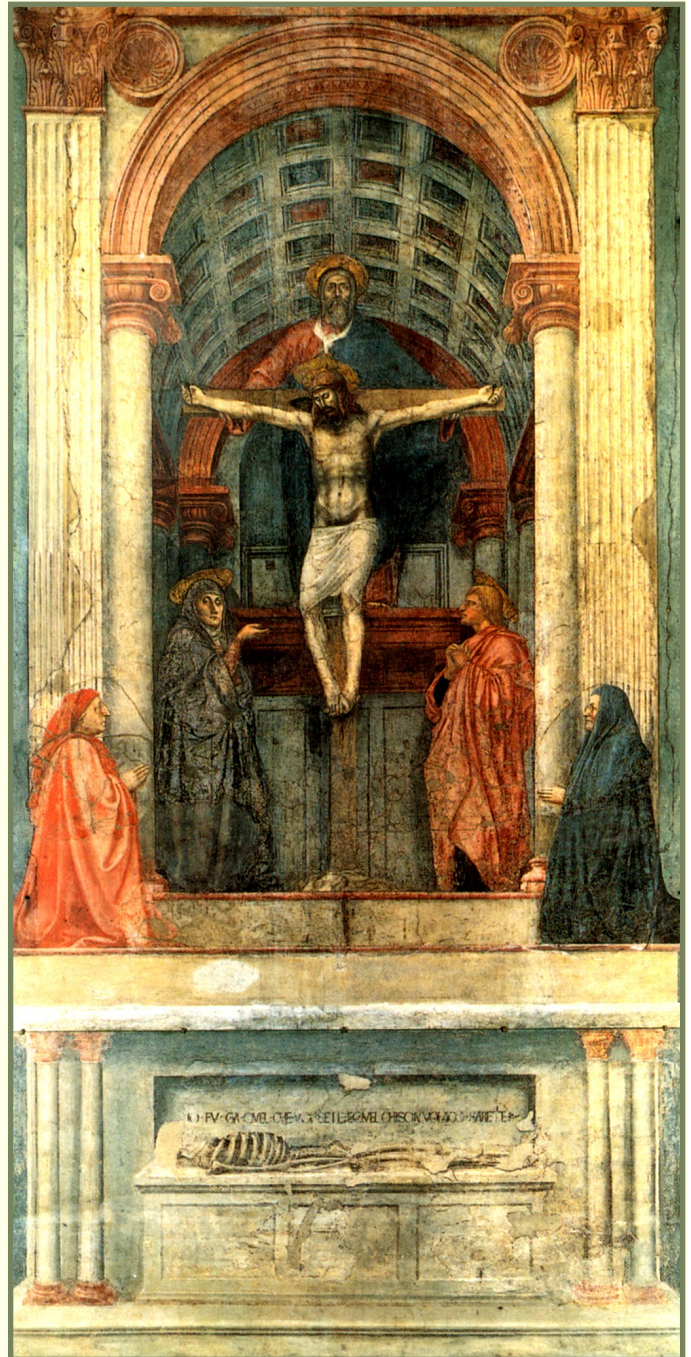

How can God who be radically one and at the same time be three persons? Full disclosure here: The Trinity is an absolute mystery, something totally outside human comprehension, but revealed to us by God. Thus, anything I say about it is a reflection, and will fall short of defining God's nature.

That said, we can see glimpses of the Trinity in the Old Testament and God manifested as Father, Son & Spirit in the New Testament. It wasn't until the 4th century of the Christian era that the doctrine of the Trinity was formulated: there is one God, but three distinct persons. Each is the fullness of God, but they share in the God-head with the others. They are consubstantial.

Our own experience of God may be more meaningful. The Father is the creator of the universe, existing in all things, but above and beyond all things. The Father is at our core, yet completely unknowable. The Son is God's manifestation to the world. He is God made visible and knowable. Through His life as a human being, the Son is immersed fully in human experience, and is, thus, an example of perfect humanity. The Holy Spirit is the divine spark that exists between the Father and Son, a spark that sustains all created things in existence.

If this seems overwhelming, it should. We can never, not even in heaven, understand the fullness of God. But we are privileged to have God's nature revealed to us.

As we celebrate Trinity Sunday, let us be aware that the Creator of all things cares for us personally and reveals to us his triune nature.

Masaccio, The Trinity, 1427. Santa Maria Novella, Florence.

"The fresco, with its terrible logic, is like a proof in philosophy or mathematics: God the Father, with His unrelenting eyes, being the axiom from which everything else irrevocably flows." ~ Mary McCarthy
