Sacred Icon Workshop

Making the Invisible Visible

Sharon Henthorn-Iwane
Iconographer, Spiritual Director

NEW COLLEGE Berkeley

Parishioner and Iconographer Sharon Henthorn-Iwane understands iconography as a sacred art that "makes the invisible visible." Through this intensive workshop, Sharon will guide you through the traditional process of painting an icon of your own in egg tempera with genuine gold gilding on a gessoed panel. No experience is necessary.

Participants will gather over two weekends to learn and create in a calm, communal setting. Dates: Saturday, July 4th / 9am-4pm (with lunch break) + Sunday, July 5th / 1pm-4pm, and Saturday, July 11th / 9am-4pm (with lunch break) + Sunday, July 12th / 1pm-4pm. Lunch will be provided on the Saturdays. All required art supplies will be provided.

Location: Norton Hall

Register by June 22nd at newcollegeberkeley.org/events

Sharon was taught her craft by master iconographer Charles Rohrbacher in 2004 and has apprenticed with him since. You can see some examples of her work at prayericons.com.

An American Pope & True Patriot

When the Conclave surprised us all by electing a pope from the United States, I mused that the cardinals were concerned enough about the direction our country was taking that they thought someone from the U.S. might counterbalance its current leadership. Whether or not that is true, Pope Leo has risen to the occasion by speaking out for justice and care for the most vulnerable.

Pope Leo has engaged the U.S. government with his head held high, keeping the debate centered on peoples' welfare, rather than taking the bait to respond to personal attacks. When our Secretary of State attempted to lecture him about the Just War Ethic, the Pope — who is also an Augustinian priest—simply clarified what Saint Augustine wrote and how it has been interpreted over the centuries. When the U.S. military called in the Papal Nuncio for a dressing down, the Vatican did not react; rather it responded by clarifying the Church's duty to hold belligerents accountable for violating long-established conventions about civilian infrastructure.

American Catholics are not of one mind concerning the direction of our country, nor of the Pope's response. They have a right to debate domestic and foreign policy, as well as the pope's critique. That debate, however, is supposed to happen within the parameters of common decency. My sense is that even conservative Catholic are wincing at the deportment of some of our highest government leaders.

I was once proud to call myself a United States citizen. While I believed our country was not perfect, I felt that its leaders could generally be counted on to act with integrity, honor our treaties, and behave morally. I still believe that most Americans conduct themselves in this way. But more than a few of our leaders have taken the gloves off and demonstrated the philosophy that "might makes right."

Pope Leo is a steady voice amid all this harangue, and the Church is paying the price for it. For example, grants administered by the Church to help displaced children have been taken back. I'm sure there will be more retaliation to come.

We are at risk by standing with Pope Leo, but it is our way of protesting the abuse of power. One dispiriting aspect of what has happened in our country is learning how little we can do about it. Strong leaders standing up to the bullies is the most direct means to change our country's course. Pope Leo will help keep our heads clear and prayerfully contribute to our values.
